

The Hobbit – Misty Mountains Cold

Tablature for six-hole Native American flute

The tablature is organized into five vertical columns, each representing a measure of music. Each measure contains eight flute icons, one for each note. The first four measures are grouped together by a light gray vertical bar, and the fifth measure is also grouped by a light gray vertical bar. Above each group is a small icon of a Native American flute head. The icons show the six holes of the flute with black dots indicating finger placement. The first four measures are grouped by a light gray vertical bar, and the fifth measure is also grouped by a light gray vertical bar.
